AWS Activate Program and AWS credits

2. Levels $10.000,- , $25.000,- and $100.000,- (all in AWS credits to cover AWS cloud services only) are not the separate credit's amounts. They are levels in the Activate Program.
3. Examples to better understand the mechanism:
 - a. If a startup requested and approved for $10.000,- level, will next request and will be approved for another level $25.000,-, it will get $15.000,- new credits as $25.000,- (new level) minus $10.000,- (previous level) equals $15.000,- (new credits).
 - b. If a startup was on the $25.000,- level and will request for $100.000,- level and will be approved, it will get $75.000,- new credits as $100.000,- (new level) minus $25.000,- (previous level) equals $75.000,- (new credits).
 - c. If a startup before the Challenge has been already in AWS Activate Program on $10.000,- level and will try to request for $10.000,- level in this Challenge, will not get any incremental credits as the same logic as above ($10.000,- new level minus $10.000,- previous level = 0).
4. The maximum number of AWS Activate Credits per startup is $100k.
5. Additional information on how AWS Activate Program works, can be found in the FAQ: <https://aws.amazon.com/activate/faq/>
